Traub Lieberman Opens New Office in Watertown, Connecticut

Related Attorneys: Denis M. Farrell, Richard K. Traub, Lisa L. Shrewsberry

Traub Lieberman Straus & Shrewsberry LLP ("TLSS") is excited to announce the expansion of the firm's footprint in the Northeast with the opening of a new office in Watertown, Connecticut on May 1, 2018. The new TLSS Watertown office will support the firm's growing presence in Connecticut and will allow TLSS to more readily service its growing client base across the state and region. TLSS has a reputation for excellence in the national legal community, and the firm's partners and attorneys are also experts within the respective jurisdictions where they practice. The new TLSS Watertown, Connecticut office will be managed by resident partner Denis Farrell, a seasoned litigator in the areas of professional and commercial liability. Denis lives in Watertown, Connecticut with his wife and three children. Of the Watertown opening, he says, "I am looking forward to being able to manage and grow the firm's Connecticut practice from a centrally located office, within easy reach of all corners of the state." The new TLSS office is located in the historic Princeton Building, at 27 Siemon Company Drive, an old mill factory dating back to the early 1900's, and converted into modern professional office space.

Rich Traub, Managing Partner of TLSS, is also excited about the new office opening, stating, "It is extremely gratifying to watch the firm succeed and grow. The expansion of our capabilities in Connecticut is a testament to the fine work we have done there, and we are thrilled that Denis will be at the helm of the office." TLSS partner Lisa Shrewsberry, an alumna of the University Of Connecticut School Of Law, is particularly enthusiastic: "The firm has many lawyers, like me, who are from Connecticut and are excited to grow our presence there, so this new office is especially meaningful."
